Grant on the Battle of the Wilderness. The general in chief, Grant, talked for some time with officers of the staff about the results of the battle of the previous days. He said in this connection: "All things in this world are relative. While we were engaged in the Wilderness I could not keep from thinking of the first fight I ever saw—the battle of Palo Alto. As I looked at the long line of battle, consisting of 3,000 men, I felt that General Taylor had such a fearful responsibility resting upon him that I wondered how he ever had the nerve to assume it; and when, after the fight, the casualties were reported and the losses ascertained to be nearly 600 men killed, wounded and missing, the engagement assumed a magnitude in my eyes which was positively startling. When the news of the victory reached the States, the window in every house held were illuminated, and it was largely instrumental in making General Taylor president of the United States. Now, such an affair would scarcely be deemed important enough to report to headquarters." He little thought at that moment that the battles then in progress would be chiefly instrumental in making the commander-in-chief president of the United States.—General Horace Porter in Century.

A Famous Palace.

The Chateau de Rambouillet, which is now the favorite residence of the president of the French republic, has a history unique from the literary fact of the eighteenth century which has made the word Rambouillet significant of an epoch of French culture. It was in this chateau that Francois I breathed his last and Charles X. is described in his death. It is not generally known, however, how Louis XVI became its proprietor. Until 1785 the chateau belonged to the Due de Penthiere, grandson of Louis XIV, and the Due de Montpensier. Louis XVI wished very much to possess it. This desire became a fixed passion, which was augmented by his dislike of its owner. But one day he declared, "The possess of Rambouillet would be the happiness of my life." To which the duke glancingly replied, "God forbid that I should be the cause of your unhappiness." Sir Rambouillet is yours on your own terms. The price fixed was 11,000,000 francs, of which 6,000,000 were paid the next day in gold from the royal treasury.

Feed Themselves.

Nobody does anything well for nothing, and certainly not a lawyer. Lord Mansfield was so sensible of this that when on one occasion he had to attend to some professional business of his own he took some guineas out of his purse and put them into his waistcoat pocket to give him the requisite stimulus. Sir Anthony Malone, an Irish attorney general, was so impudent as to omit this payment and was grievously punished for it; for he was so inattentive regarding some property he bought for himself that he lost £3,000 a year by it. In future he caused his clerk to make an abstract of the title deeds of any property he bought and lay it before him in a book of 5 guineas, properly indexed, when the clerk was stamping it out for him, after which Sir Anthony made more mistakes, as regarded his own affairs.—San Francisco Argus.

HEALTH IN MARCH, APRIL, MAY!

Use the Only Spring Remedy in the World That Has Stood All Tests of Time.

PAINES CELERY COMPOUND MAKES ONE WELL.

In March, April and May use Paine's Celery Compound.

And only Paine's Celery Compound!

For it is nature's remedy.

Do not for a moment confound it with any of the ignorant, catch-penny, short-lived patent remedies—sarsaparilla, nervines and tonics that bear as much resemblance to Paine's Celery Compound as the parasite vines do to the oaks that they live on.

Paine's Celery Compound cures disease. It makes people well. It has saved the lives of thousands of sufferers. It makes the weak strong.

It purifies the blood and enriches the nerves.

Every condition of winter life has been detrimental to health. There has been a steady decline in nervous vigor. Now that spring comes, the body is ready to cast off unhealthy tissues, if it is given a chance. This opportunity comes when the excretory organs, kidneys, skin and bowels, are made to work actively and the nerves are able to furnish sufficient energy to the digestive organs.

No remedy in the world accomplishes

THE PRESIDENT ON FINANCE.

Of all the topics discussed by President McKinley in his inaugural address, none comes quite so near the hearts of the people of Nevada as that of finance. That its readers may know just what the President did say on this subject, the JOURNAL prints in full that portion of the address:

"The responsibilities of the trust to which I have been called, always of grave importance, are augmented by the prevailing business conditions, entailing idleness upon willing labor and loss to useful enterprises. The country is suffering from industrial disturbances, from which speedy relief must be had. Our financial system needs some revision; our money is all good now, but its value must not further be threatened; it should all be put upon the enduring basis, not subject to easy attack, nor its stability to doubt or dispute."

"Our currency should continue under the supervision of the Government. The several forms of our paper money offer, in my judgment, a constant embarrassment to the Government, and a safe balance in the Treasury. Therefore, I believe it necessary to devise a system, without diminishing the circulating medium or offering a premium for its contraction, which will present a remedy for those arrangements which, temporary in their nature, might well in times of prosperity have been displaced by wiser provisions. With adequate revenue insured, but not until then, can we enter upon such changes in our fiscal laws as will, while insuring safety and volume to our money, no longer impose upon the Government the necessity of maintaining so large a gold reserve, with its attendant and inevitable temptations to speculation. Most of our financial laws are the outgrowth of experience and trial, and should not be amended without investigation and demonstration of the wisdom of the proposed changes. We must be both sure we are right and make haste slowly."

"If, therefore, Congress, in its wisdom, shall deem it expedient to create a commission to take under early consideration the revision of our coinage, banking and currency laws and give them that exhaustive, careful and dispassionate examination that the importance demands, I shall cordially concur in such action. If such power is vested in the President, it is my purpose to appoint a commission of prominent, well-informed citizens, of different parties, who will command public confidence, both on account of their ability and special fitness for the work. Business experience and public training may thus be combined and the patriotic zeal of the friends of the country be so directed that such a report will be made as to receive the support of all parties and our finances cease to be the subject of mere partisan contention. The experiment is, at all events, worth a trial, and in my opinion, it can prove beneficial to the entire country."

"The question of international bimetallism will have early and earnest attention. It will be my constant endeavor to secure it by co-operation with the other great commercial powers of the world. Until that condition is realized and the parity between our gold and silver money springs from and is supported by these relative values of the two metals, the value of silver already coined, and of that which hereafter may be coined, must be kept constantly at par with gold by every resource at our command."

"The credit of the Government, the integrity of its currency, and the inviolability of its obligations must be preserved. This was the commanding verdict of the people and it will not be unheeded."

RELIEF CLAIMS.

As is usual in the closing days of a legislative session relief bills are being introduced in both Houses. Three of these bills are reminiscences of the Midwinter Fair and are for the amounts of $50, $100 and $401 respectively. Another is to provide for the payment of certain State officers and deputies for the first seven days of the year 1895.

The Midwinter Fair deficiencies were provided for in an act of the Legislature of 1895, and the new claims are probably the result of "after thought," as they were not presented two years ago. It is not likely that the bill will pass, but legislative bodies are, as the Indian said of the white man, mighty uncertain.

The bill for the payment of ex-State officers amounts to $426.32. It is for services rendered the State for the first seven days of January, 1895, the time when the present officials entered upon their duties. The old officers were paid their salaries as provided by law for forty-eight calendar months. They claimed extra pay for the seven days service in 1895 of their successors. The latter refused to comply and now they go to the Legislature for relief. It is claimed that the terms of State officers are for four years and no longer and as the old officials were paid for forty-eight calendar months they have no just claims against the present officials, nor against the State.

RELATING TO MINERAL LANDS.

The Legislature has passed and the Governor has approved a bill relating to mineral lands, which amends Section 4 of the

2 of "An Act to Encourage Mining," approved March 3, 1887. It provides that every contract, patent or deed hereafter made by this State or the agents thereof shall contain a provision expressly reserving all mines of gold, silver, copper, lead, cinnabar or other valuable minerals that may exist in such land, and the State, for itself and its successors, disclaims any interest in mineral lands heretofore or hereafter selected by the State on account of any grant from the United States.

All persons desiring titles to mines upon lands which have been selected by the State must obtain such title from the United States under the laws of Congress, notwithstanding such selection.

This act is to prevent all controversy regarding the title to mining claims discovered upon lands selected by the State and disposed of to settlers or speculators. The general Government requires proof from homesteaders or purchasers of lands in the mineral regions that the lands are more valuable for agricultural than for mining purposes. Under the new law the discoverer of a mine on lands selected and paid by the State can procure a patent for the same from the United States by complying with the mining law. This is eminently proper as it gives prospectors' chance and prevents speculators from gobbling up valuable mineral lands at the nominal price of $1.25 per acre.

MCKINLEY'S CABINET OFFICERS.

Nominations for the Portfolios Sent to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The President-to-day sent in, the following nominations for members of his Cabinet:

Secretary of State, John Sherman; Secretary of the Treasury, Lyman J. Gage; Secretary of War, Russell A. Alger; Attorney General, James McKeon; Postmaster General, James A. Gary; Secretary of the Navy, John D. Long; Secretary of the Interior, Cornelius N. Bliss; Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson.

To compliment Mr. Sherman his nomination was immediately confirmed. The other nominations were referred to various committees.

After a recess until 2 o'clock, the first nomination taken up was that of Gage, and the silver men took occasion to point out the position of Gage on the financial question. They said they did not intend to interpose any objection to the confirmation, but wanted to make it plain that while there were pledges made by the new Administration for bimetallism the new Secretary was a gold man.

This certifies that I have been using V. O. in my practice. I have never found any medical preparation in 46 years of practice that is calculated to do so much good in so wide a range of diseases and leave no after bad effects. In Diphtheria it has proved a perfect specific in my hands, and I had rather depend on it alone in that dreadful disease than the whole popular Materia Medica with that left out.

SEEDS OF HEALTH.

Eating the wrong things, too much of them at the wrong time, gives the stomach and the other digestive organs too much to do—gives them work that they cannot be expected to do. Such things prevent the free and regular action of the bowels, bring sick headaches, biliousness, kidney troubles, restless sleep, lassitude, nervousness, and plant the seeds of disease in all parts of the body. Health comes just as easy as disease. It grows up from those little sugar-coated seeds of health—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are for nothing in the world but to keep the Lowell regular, the stomach free from gas and fermentation, and the liver active.

They go about their business without making any fuss. They are very gentle in their action and cause no griping, or other unpleasantness.

They do not take the place of Nature—they merely help her. No one ever becomes a slave to their use. When the digestive action becomes regular and vigorous—stop taking the "Pellets." When you have eaten too much—take one. When constipation shows itself and headache begins—take the "Pellets" for a day or two.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—it's an easy name to remember. Don't let a designing druggist talk you into "something just as good." He makes more money on the "just as good" kind. That's why he would rather sell them. That's why you had better not take them.

English Government Waste Paper.

Periodically precise statements of what is in stock are drawn up and sent to all known dealers in waste paper, and those of them who wish to buy any of the lots offered to them return the lists with the highest bids they are prepared to make, and the highest bidder becomes the purchaser and carries it off. The annual sales bring in something over $10,000 a year, which, according to arrangements prevailing up till 1884, would all have gone as "perquisites" into official pockets. These were the good old times before the civil service "went to the dogs." It was found in very many cases that the official who pocketed the proceeds of waste paper had the original ordering of the goods.

The more he ordered the greater would be the waste and the better for his pocket, and of course there was a dreadful howl when, in 1884, Mr. McCulloch proposed a reform. The reform was indeed carried—in paper. But too, for a long time, proved to be little better than waste paper. The officials naturally entertained the strongest objection to relinquishing their customary perquisites and held on to them until a few of them were prosecuted for theft, or, to adopt the more polite phraseology of a treasury minute, for the systematic misappropriation of public property," and then for the first time Mr. McCulloch's reform became a real one, and ever since all waste has been properly collected and systematically dealt with.—Chambers' Journal.

A Quaint Bird Legend.

The Medical Press, in a recent reference to a work on some old legends in connection with drugs, said: "It would be interesting to know if the bird which the native calls 'oster' is known to noted ornithologists. Speaking of it, he remarks that its scent is said to be so strong the fishes are drawn by it as it is flying over the river, and so taken up by him, having run like a hawk, the other like a duck." It is not difficult, however, to identify the bird in question. It is the osprey (Pandion haliaetus), which, although not today classified under the genus etus, is referred to it. In the Rev. G. Schaeffer's "Folklore of British Birds" there is a reference to it from Shakspeare's "Coriolanus," act 4, scene 3:

Auditor. Up!

Up to the osprey to the fish What does it By sovereignty of nature.

And in Fable's play, called "The Battle of Alcibiades" (1694), act 2, scene 1: I will provide thee of a princely spray, That is the death of fish in pools, The fish shall turn their glistering bellies up, And then shall take thy liberal choice of all.

Saiting Fruits.

It is the custom in Italy to ship fruits in large casks filled with salt and brine. The fruit is sliced or cut in pieces and immediately put into the pickle. This fashion of shipping has its advantage over ordinary methods in that the fruit prepared need not be so fresh as that which is shipped whole and wrapped in paper or packed in boxes. Fruits of this sort are subjected to the most rigid scrutiny, as one imperfect specimen may infect the entire parcel. The salted fruit upon reaching its destination is soaked in fresh water until all traces of salt have disappeared. While this method may be tolerated in emergencies, the flavor and quality are so much impaired that shippers are looking for some other way of preserving their product.—New York Ledger.

A Mathematician.

"You mustn't detain me," said the man who was hurrying down the avenue. "My time is valuable."

"Do you reckon that five minutes of yer time is worth 25 cents?" asked Meandering Mike, quickening his pace so as to keep in step.

"Assuredly."

"Well, I was goin ter give ya a hard luck story that 'd last five minutes exactly. I've timed it fer you just the long. But ef ye'll gimme the 25 cents charge I'll let ye off with one minute, an we can another of us feel that we've been took the mantage of."

THE NEVADA LEGISLATURE.THE EIGHTEENTH SESSION—FORTY-SEVENTH DAY.

Dr. Stubbs' Answer to the Governor's Message Expended from the Assembly Journal.

CARSON, March 5, 1897.

The Assembly session held Thursday night, to which the Board of Examiners and Dr. Stubbs were invited to be present and air their differences, proved very tame and a serious disappointment to the curious ones who had crowded the Assembly chamber. Shortly after the roll call and the opening of the session a motion was made and carried that the action of the House be reconsidered and further proceedings concerning the matter be dispensed with. This ended it all, and the gentlemen did not have a chance to speak.

At this morning's session a whole hour was taken up in carrying a motion to expunge Dr. Stubbs' answer to the Governor's message from the Journal. There was a hard fight, but it was decided to strike it from the Journal. There is considerable feeling over this matter, and both parties have their friends.

Long hours and night sessions is the order now, and a few days more will end the agony.

WEATHER BULLETIN.

Blizzards Will Occur in the Northwest About the 30th of March.

(Copyright, 1897, by W. T. Foster.)

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 6.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from March 13th, to 17th.

The next disturbance will reach the Pacific Coast about March 18th, cross the west of the Rockies by the close of the 19th, the Great Central Valley about March 20th to 22d, and the Eastern States the 23d.

The warm wave will cross the west of Rockies about March 18th. Great Central Valley the 20th, Eastern States the 22d. The cool wave will cross the west of Rockies country about the 21st, Great Central Valley the 23d, Eastern States the 25th.

This disturbance will cause severe storms in many parts of the United States, and a cold wave, causing blizzards in the northwest, will be a part of its closing effects.

This will be the "equinoctial storm," but it must not be supposed that storms always occur precisely at the equinoxes. Equinoctial storms may occur at any time within ten days of the equinoxes, the date being determined by planetary influences.

The week ending March 12th will average colder than usual and rainfall for that period will be above normal. This forecast, as well as many others in these bulletins, has special reference to the whole United States as an average. Parties interested in greater details should correspond with me.

February 24th brought a great event in my weather work. On that day I succeeded in reducing to arithmetical figures the laws that govern the monthly averages of temperature and rainfall. These figures prove my long used theory to be correct, there being only four errors in thirty-six months.

These four errors belong to the reversal periods which I have not yet been able to reduce to figures, although their causes are well understood.

Rainfall and temperature constitute nine-tenths, in importance, of all there is in meteorology and at last, after years of toil, I have reduced these to figures that will always give reliable results. Hereafter all my forecasts of rainfall and temperature will be based on these new tables and will be more reliable than heretofore.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison.

Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

ST. NICHOLAS DAY IN HOLLAND.

In some houses the little children who go to bed early put out their shoes and stockings and find them crammed with presents in the morning. Others have to play a game of hide and seek for their presents, which the father and mother have hidden in the most mysterious manner and in out of the way places. In a great many families, however, Dec. 5 is celebrated by sending and receiving parcels in the evening of that day. "Parcels" must be taken here in a very broad sense. The servant who has to answer the bell is obliged to bring in whatever is put into her hands or before her and consequently is often heard to giggle behind the door of the room in which the whole family is assembled. Then in walks—nay, is put—a most extraordinary looking gentleman—an old lady or a queer animal, consisting chiefly of wood or of linen filled with sawdust, in which the present sometimes one of very small dimensions lies concealed. Funny little figures often accompany the parcels, and generally much good natured teasing is contained in the poetical lines. The patience of some people is often sorely tried by a parcel consisting of a big ball of very fine cotton, which has to be unwound to get at the present. Annie C. Kniper in St. Nicholas.

EMERSON'S "AMERICAN SCHOLAR."

Emerson has left behind him nothing stronger than this address, "The American Scholar." It was the first application of his views to the events of his day, written and delivered in the heat of early manhood while his extraordinary powers were at their height. It moves with a logical progression, of which he soon lost the habit. The subject of it—the scholar's relation to the world—was the passion of his life. The body of his belief is to be found in this address, and in any adequate account of him the whole address ought to be given.

Dr. Holmes called this speech of Emerson's our "Intellectual Declaration of Independence," and indeed it was. "The Phi Beta Kappa speech," says Dr. Lewis, "was an event without any former parallel in our literary annals, as it always to be treasured in the memory for its picturesqueness and its inspiration. What crowded and breathless aisles, what windows clustering with eager heads, what enthusiasm of approval, what a silence of foregone consent!" John Jay Chapman in At-
